EAMES, STILL A BEAUTY, HEARD IN "LA TOSCA"

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Eames made her first appearance since her romantic marriage to Emilio de Gogorza at the Boston Opera House last night. The opera was "La Tosca," and supporting the famous prima donna were Francesco de Vito, Giovanni Pavesi as Baron Scarpia.

There was a large audience, but the Boston public pardoned several rows of seats in the balcony to remain empty, despite the presence of one of the members of the Metropolitan Opera. The singing of Eames was not so good as it had been in her first years, but it was still good, and she was still a beauty.

She is still a beautiful woman, in spite of the fact that she is a little older than when she first appeared in Boston. She is still a beauty, and she is still a beauty.

It was therefore a pity that Eames should have been so disappointed in her performance. She was not so good as she had been in her first years, but it was still good, and she was still a beauty.

She is still a beautiful woman, in spite of the fact that she is a little older than when she first appeared in Boston. She is still a beauty, and she is still a beauty.

MISS SCOTNEY IS HAPPY OVER HER OPERA TRIUMPH

GET NEW FACTS
IN BRIEF CASES

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 21. — Attorney David I. Walsh, who has been prosecuting the case of the "Reds" in this city, is providing additional evidence in the trial of the two men who will appear in court to-morrow charged with bribery on eight counts.

"The latest evidence that I have received is overwhelming," said Mr. Walsh today. "We are awaiting new facts that will free the men from the accusation for those who have violated the tailors' law."

With Lanson will be brought Attorney George and William C. Vogel. They also are charged with having a hand in the alleged bribery of voters on November 7.

With "Coke" and an attorney to one year of John K. Murphy, the Republican, it is thought that the case will be disposed of. The men have redoubled their efforts in

MATCH PERELLI WITH MANGOFF

Wrestlers representing Italy and Turkey will get together in a match to a finish when John Perelli, the Italian heavy weight, and Manogoff, the clever Turk, clash in the semi-final to the Burns-American contest in Mechanics building on Christmas night.

The men are evenly matched in weight, height and speed, and these, with the racial feeling existing between them, are expected to bring about one of the swiftest mat battles seen in Boston in many a day.

Notes of the Alleys

The two anchor men, Rouse of Carrou-

and tone of Elfre are certainly having hard tussle for first place among the individual rollers in the City League. Rou leads by a fraction of a point. Miller and Giant, two more Elfre men, are traveling at a fast rate.

Who is going to stop the Ashmun rollers in the Heptasoph League? The team has lost only one point out of 3 since the season opened and are still gaining. Boyston took all four points from Kildare and are now only one point behind Dudley.

Watch the attendance grow at the Hippasophy meetings next week. Supreme Archon, Brother Cohen, is to be an honored guest. The rollers are all prepared for Mr. Cohen and they are all going to wear dress suits. They do the same. Brother Cohen will try the pins himself and he has some average. One hundred and ten is the dope.

His own obituary is the part that is a rare thing for a dead man: at his own funeral, Pietro Fioravanti and amateur musician, his great fondness for the phonograph, he purchased a good many records and he kept records of the songs. He was seriously ill. He realized that he could not recover, and being a poor man, unable to afford much of a funeral, he requested that his phonograph should be utilized to furnish the music for his funeral service.

He picked out the "Angels" Serenades and the "Ave Maria," sung by himself. These were used, and thus the obituary took an important part at his funeral. He instructed that his phonograph and seventy-two records, most of them his own, should be
